A Correction.

In our last issue we stated that Levi Foster cut Sam Portwood with a knife on Saturday night at the corner of Main and First streets. In getting the names of the parties we were informed that it was Levi Foster who did the cutting, which was erroneous. It was Ira Foster, Jr., and not Levi Foster, as we stated. We gladly make the correction.

Big Sale of Horses.

The saddle horses of Mrs. Richard Tasker Lowndes, Jr., of Danville, were auctioned off last Wednesday. In the dispersal sale, the breeders of saddle stock were greatly encouraged by the unusually high run of prices. Twenty-eight head brought $7,329, an average price of $261. The top price of $1,150 was paid by James McIlwain for Kentucky's Choice and he will be returned to Bellevue Farm to become the property of the man who managed him for years. Edna May, one of the most famous saddle mares of the present day, was sold to A. G. Jones, of Bourbon county, for $1,125.

Big Democratic Rallies.

Last week in many places fires were started under the kettles and thousands of gallons of Kentucky burgeo were made to appease the appetites of thousands of Democrats and others who gathered at the big rallies of Hon. A. O. Stanley and Senator Ollie M. Ames.

Friday, the Democratic hosts of Breathitt county, held a rousing meeting at Jackson. It is said that one of the largest crowds that ever attended a political meeting was present to hear the Matchless Stanley preach the gospel of Democracy. The second regiment band, of this city, furnished the music for the occasion, and the boys report one of the greatest meetings they ever attended. Stanley delivered some sledge-hammer blows, which had a most vulnerable effect upon the mighty throng.

While Mr. Stanley was propounding Democracy at Jackson, Senator Ollie M. Ames was thrilling and cheering a great crowd at Lancaster. For more than a week the local campaign committee had been actively engaged making preparations for this monster meeting. The people came from far and near, the day was an ideal one, there was plenty to eat, everybody was happy and jolly, and it is said to be one of the most representative political gatherings ever assembled in Garrard county. Senator Ames made a great speech and received a grand ovation. Garrard county will give Stanley and the entire ticket a large majority.

On Saturday, possibly the biggest rally and barbecue held in the State for many years, was given at Maysville. No expense was spared in making this the greatest event in that good old town. Not only did the Democrats of Mason county unite in giving the next Governor of Kentucky a grand ovation, but they were joined by the Democratic hosts of Bracken, Lewis and Fleming counties. Flemingburg was the home of Stanley during his early life, and thousands from Fleming county assembled at Maysville to hear the distinguished son of Kentucky, this tried and true friend of the people, deliver his message. Not since the Peerless Bryan made his first tour of Kentucky in 1890, has such a crowd been seen in Maysville as was there Saturday. And the crowd was not in the least disappointed in the message which Mr. Stanley delivered. The Democratic ticket will receive a handsome plurality in this section.

From reports coming from all sections of the State Mr. Stanley will receive the largest plurality ever given a candidate for Governor. His plurality is being placed at 40,000.

Education in Kentucky.

Kentucky has a history with as much of tragedy and romance, of fascination and inspiration as has any State in the Union. Every reader appreciates what Daniel Boone and Abraham Lincoln did for the mountains and blue grass of Kentucky, but few understand even faintly how many phases of Kentucky life have represented of foresight and heroism, energy and pluck, patriotism and culture.

In the eighteenth century provisions were made for county academies, each county in the State ultimately receiving 6,000 acres of land to provide a fund to aid in the support of an academy in the county. Not even Massachusetts had such a county vision in the eighteenth century.

In 1821 was passed an act to establish a "Literary Fund," and not even Governor Chilton, of New York, or Governor Wolfe, of Pennsylvania, ever voiced more brilliantly the need of public education than did Lieutenant Governor W. T. Berry and his committee associates in 1821.

Here is a paragraph—the proof which sustains free institutions, and the lever which overthrows the oppressor's throne. Happily, we are not laboring to undermine a fabric of despotism; but to remove the work on which tyrants build. It was not Caesar that overturned the liberties of Rome—it was ignorance. It was not Napoleon that made France a despotism—it was ignorance.

That extended report contains correspondence with the ablest men in America, many of whom wrote an educational classic. That was almost a hundred years ago. The letter of the venerable ex-president of the United States, John Adams, far into the eighties, is a worthy companion piece to the letters received from Thomas Jefferson. In 1837, when Horace Mann was ready to devote himself to the public school cause in Massachusetts, Kentucky set aside a million dollars as a public school fund.

In 1838, following close upon the laws of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, Kentucky established a State Board of Education, the same law they now have, and established the office of State Superintendent. Kentucky was one of the very first States in the Union to take these two steps.

In 1838, before the Normal School was opened at Lexington, Massachusetts—the first State Superintendent of Kentucky, J. J. Ballard, made an appeal for a State Normal School.

That Kentucky did not realize her educational ideals of those early days is due to the variety and violence of problems which she had to face. With the delay and their causes, we do not concern ourselves.

Each of the nineteen State Superintendents has worked for educational advance and each achieved something of which he and his descendants may well be proud, but circumstances and personally have made three administrations stand out conspicuously for their noble accomplishments.

Students of the educational history of Kentucky must always give first place to the administration of Robert Jefferson to Breckinridge, D. D. L. D., from 1847 to 1853. It was he who made the public school system a "free public school system."

Second place will always be given to Hon. Zachary F. Smith, 1867-1871. Breckinridge had written the word "free" into law but during the war and immediately after the war money was badly lacking. It was the noble mission of Mr. Smith to provide for the permanent financing of the "free" school idea.

The third place will always be accorded to Hon. J. C. Crabbe, L. L. D., now president of the Eastern State Normal School at Richmond. It was Mr. Crabbe who lifted the people of the entire State up to the Common Free School idea and support. More than one hundred and fifteen years ago the fathers of Kentucky had the first county union in the New World, but it was one hundred years before Dr. Crabbe breathed into that idea the breath of life. He was the genius and the masterfulness that developed the "whirlwind campaign" of 1908 and 1909, awakening a popular demand for advanced educational legislation, the greatest change in public sentiment in two years that has ever been known in any State in the Union. Fortunately the present State Superintendent, Harkness Hamlet, has been able and willing to continue the perfection of the educational system of Kentucky.—Dr. A. E. Wenship in the Journal of Education: Boston.

WEEKLY WAR REVIEW

To relieve the strain on Serbia, pending the time allied troops of sufficient weight can reach the Balkan front, the entente powers have launched attacks against the Teuton and Bulgarian armies, now threatening the Serbian forces. The past week Italy launched a general offensive along the Tifol and Trentino frontiers of Austria, all her warships, including Russian vessels, have battered the Bulgarian ports in the Aegean, and Russia has increased the pressure on the eastern front and by a coup of arms and sea operations has flung men and guns on the coast of Courland, ninety miles northeast of Riga, thus menacing the rear of General Von Buelow's army.

What progress the British and French troops are making in their advance northward from Salonica, Greece, to the relief of Serbia is still withheld, and there are misgivings in many quarters that Serbia never will be saved in this way. Greece's apparent authentic demand that allied soldiers, to insure her safety, rather than allied concessions to expand her dominions, constituted her price for aligning herself against the central powers and Turkey, curries the implication that she regards the forces landed at Salonica as far from adequate for the purpose.

Rumania's stipulation governing her entry into the war in behalf of the entente powers, has, according to report, narrowed to a similar, though more specific, demand for 400,000 allied troops to insure her against invasion.

The Serbians' position is grave is the opinion prevailing at London. With this admission there is developing daily an increasing rancor over Greece's attitude, coupled with demands that attention be given to the policy to drift, while there is a possibility of her turning against the entente.

The Bulgarians, though hampered by bad weather, are driving further into the interior of Serbia, while the Austro-German forces on the north and east frontiers are maintaining terrific pressure and moving slowly forward.

Russian claims that the German drive at the Baltic port of Riga has been halted. The situation on the western front remains unchanged.

DAY OF THANKSGIVING

Duly Designated by President Wilson, Who Issues Proclamation. Washington, Oct. 22.—President Wilson, in his proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25, as Thanksgiving day, called attention to the fact that the United States has been at peace while most of Europe has been at war. "We have been able to assert our rights and the rights of mankind without breach of friendship with the great nations with whom we have had to deal," said the president. He invited the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations on Thanksgiving day and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

The president says further: "Our ability to serve all who could avail themselves of our services in the midst of crises has been increased, by a gracious Providence, by more and more abundant crops; our ample financial resources have enabled us to steady the markets of the world, and our people have come more and more to a better realization of the part they have been called upon to play in a time when all the world is shaken by unparalleled distresses and disasters."

Nine Germans Missing. Washington, Oct. 23.—An official list of the missing members of the crew of the two German auxiliary cruisers interned at Norfolk, issued by the navy department, shows that of a total of 785 officers and men, one commissioned officer, two doctors and six warrant officers have broken parole. Not one bluejacket is missing.

USKUP CAPTURED BY BULGARIANS

Serbian Railway Center Falls After Brisk Fighting.

ROUTE OF THE ALLIES CUT OFF

Austro-German Forces Begin a More Vigorous Offensive in the North, Crossing the Danube Near Orsova. Russian Troops Landed in Courland Re-embark—Hindenburg Striving to Reach the Dvina.

London, Oct. 25.—An official dispatch from Sofia states that the Bulgarian army has taken Uskup, an important junction on the Salonica-Nish railway, and has thus placed itself across the route by which the allies' reinforcements for the Serbs would travel. The Austro-Germans, in the north, have begun a more vigorous offensive and have crossed the Danube near Orsova. This brings much nearer the linking up of the armies of the German allies and those of Bulgaria and the opening of the way through Bulgaria to Constantinople.

Success is not being achieved without heavy losses, as the Serbian veterans, well entrenched in their mountain, are offering stubborn resistance and are making the invaders pay a big price for every mile of country invaded.

French troops are fighting beside the Serbs in the southeastern section, and reports from Athens says that the allies to help their small partner. Additional troops are being landed at Salonica. Bulgarian posts in the Aegean and Black seas are being bombarded and it is believed that men and munitions will be sent to Serbia by still another route. Without the aid of the Russian fleet, the Russian fleet, however, the allies, it is feared here, will not be able to do much for some weeks.

The Russian troops who have landed at Domenez, Courland, have, according to Berlin, re-embarked. If this is so, it is probable that the landing was intended as a diversion, in the hope of drawing German troops from the Riga and Dvina regions, where very heavy fighting is still in progress.

There is no news of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's drive toward the Dvina, southeast of Riga, but northwest of Dvinsk he has made another attempt to reach the river and claims to have forced the Russian forces from their positions, inflicting great losses on them and taking nearly 3,000 prisoners. Hinkovsk, which has figured prominently in all the recent communications, has been captured by the Germans.

The persistence with which the Germans are attacking in this region shows the importance of the Dvina, the capture of Dvinsk and Riga and the line of the Dvina river before winter sets in.

On the rest of the eastern front the Russians continue their isolated attacks, which are designed to prevent the Germans from establishing a line of intrenchments such as they succeeded in doing before Warsaw last year, after the first attempts to take the city failed.

For a few attacks by the Germans, the fighting in the west has consisted for the most part of artillery engagements and some exciting contests between the air men.

EXECUTION HELD JUST BY BERLIN

Miss Cavell's Deeds Warranted Death Penalty It Is Said.

WARNINGS REPEATEDLY ISSUED

English Woman Said to Have Been Principal Agent in Plot to Enlist Belgian Soldiers—German Women Executed in France For Similar Offenses—Statement of the German Foreign Undersecretary.

Amsterdam, Oct. 25.—The following Berlin dispatch was received here: "As the foreign press is discussing in an incorrect and exaggerated manner the execution of Edith Cavell for war treason the facts may again be stated.

It was proved after a long trial that the sentenced persons had for some months been engaged in assisting Belgians of military age to enlist in hostile armies and French and English deserters to escape the country. They had many helpers and organized branches. The governor general repeatedly issued warnings that severe punishment of such action was unavoidable. The guilty persons were sentenced in public sittings according to the law based on the Imperial penal code and the military penal code for war treason and espionage.

No special law exists for Belgium. No so-called usage of war influenced the verdict. The accused for the most part admitted guilt and acknowledged that they were aware of the nature of their actions. Edith Cavell was the principal agent in a plot to enlist Belgians. In regard to the assertion that she, in the course of her profession, unselfishly tended other persons, it may be pointed out that she earned her living by nursing, charging fees which were within the means of the rich people only. Women also have been executed in France. For instance, last March, when the German Margaret Schmidt was executed at Nancy, and in May, when the German, Ottilie Moss, was put to death at Bourges.

Dr. Alfred F. M. Zimmermann, German under secretary for foreign affairs, also issued an explanation of the recent execution in Belgium of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse. He prefaced his remarks by the declaration that he had examined the case and found the evidence was of the greatest care and found the verdict, though regrettable, to be just.

Dr. Zimmermann says: "The result is so convicting and all the circumstances are so clear and convincing that no court martial in the world would have reached any other decision. For it concerns not the act of one single person, rather it concerns a well-thought-out, world-wide conspiracy which succeeded for nine months to render the most valuable services to the enemy to the disadvantage of our arm. Countless British, Belgian and French soldiers now are fighting in the trenches, who owe their escape from Belgium to the activity of the band now sentenced, at the head of which stood Miss Cavell."

CARRANZA TROOPS ON AMERICAN SOIL

Entraining For Agua Prieta to Prevent Border Fighting.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 25.—Telegrams from Agua Prieta, Sonora, state that General Carranza Villa and his troops have not yet appeared anywhere near that border town, where the major portion of the Carranza forces in Sonora are garrisoned.

Telegrams from Eagle Pass, Tex., state that the entraining of Carranza troops there and at Laredo, for shipment through the United States to reinforce the Agua Prieta garrison, has been decided upon. The troops will be escorted by United States soldiers through American territory and should reach Agua Prieta Tuesday. It is said that ammunition was shipped from El Paso to the Carranza garrison at Agua Prieta.

The movement of the Carranza troops is looked upon as a move to prevent fighting on the international line at Agua Prieta, with the possible injury to Americans in Arizona.

Villa is reported as having much trouble getting his cannon over the mountains from Casas Grandes to Sonora, and is said to have lost some of his guns in the mountain passes, before deciding to dismantle them and carry them through on mules. With General Angeles in the United States, Villa is without a competent artilleryman to man the guns and, owing to the rough country was able to carry but little ammunition with him and could not have secured any more if he could have taken it.

"Edison Day"

Thirty-six years ago, on October 21st, Thomas A. Edison gave to the world the first successful incandescent electric lamp. Last year a movement was started to celebrate October 21st as Edison Day throughout the country. Since then this date will be stamped indelibly on the minds of everyone as the birth day of the greatest single achievement of this world.

Up to the very day, thirty-six years ago, when Edison announced the discovery of the new lamp, the greatest scientists and inventors in the world said repeatedly that the incandescent electric lamp was an impossibility. But Edison proved that it could be done, as he had with a hundred other supposed-to-be-impossible things, and gave to the world its first commercial electric lamp bulb.

On October 21st a nation honored the man who has done so much to enlarge our working day, to banish night and thus increase the scope of industry and art.

Of the hour of victory, the birth of the Edison Lamp on October 21, 1879, Edison says: "We sat and looked, and the lamp continued to burn, and the longer it burned the more fascinated we were. None of us could go to bed, and there was no sleep for over 36 hours. We sat and watched it with anxiety and growing elation."

The discovery of the incandescent lamp was but a small part of the task which confronted Edison in those busy days. It was necessary for him to produce a complete lighting system with lamps, conductors, insulators, measuring instruments, dynamos, switchboards, etc.

There was no dynamo, or generator, suitable for Edison's new lighting system, so the first thing he did was to go work and invent a new and better generator than the electricians had ever dreamed of before. There were no steam engines large enough, or fast enough, to run the new generators, so Edison helped the steam engineers to design and make new and better engines.

The Hamlett Voucher.

Republicans are making great capital out of the voucher which Hamlett, Superintendent of Public Instruction, received for the sum of $13.50 from the taxpayers of Kentucky for expenses incurred at the Palmer House in Paducah last May, when his hotel bill was said to have been only $2.00. For the sake of argument we will admit this is absolutely true. We will also admit that everything the Republicans have alleged in this campaign is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

If the Democrats are as black as they have been painted by the Republicans, the record of the Democratic party in Kentucky is like a bottle of clear, sparkling water beside a bottle of midnight ink. The bottle of clear water represents the record of the Democratic party and the midnight ink represents the record of the Republican party.

Turn the searchlight on the past; go back to the years when Governor Bradley was in the executive chair; turn your attention for a few minutes to the time when W. S. Taylor was at Frankfort; take into consideration the great amount of the taxpayers' money squandered upon a lawless mob; behold an empty public treasury, depleted by wanton graft; gaze upon the lifeless form of a matchless defender and champion of the people's rights, his life being snuffed out by an assassin's bullet fired from the Capital Building which was presided over by the Republican party; refresh your memory of the time when the militia paraded the streets, under orders of a Republican Governor, and then tell us, Mr. Voter, if you endorse these things. Look the record of the Democratic party over and see if you can find a parallel in all its history wherein it so defrauded, disgraced and bankrupted the State as during the Republican regime at Frankfort. If you can, then our advice to you is to vote the Republican ticket from top to bottom.

WEAK, AILING CHILD

Made Strong By Delicious Vinol
Lakewood, N. H.—"Our little girl 8 years of age was in a debilitated, run-down condition and had a stubborn cough so she was weak and ailing all the time. Nothing helped her until we tried Vinol. Then her appetite increased and she is strong and well, and I wish other parents of weak, delicate children would try Vinol."—Geo. A. Collins.

This is because Vinol contains the tissue building, strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic which weak and run-down systems need.

BUILDING GOOD ROADS

More than 80 counties in Kentucky are actually at work building roads under state supervision and with state aid. Twenty other counties have asked for and been granted such aid and are now preparing to begin work. The state-wide road building movement is on in earnest, and it is here to stay.

At the two penitentiaries at Frankfort and Eddyville, there are 2,000 men convicts. A large proportion of that number are physically capable of working on the roads, instead of being so worked, they are let out to prison contractors at an annual loss to the state.

At the coming election, a constitutional amendment to work the convicts on the roads is to be voted on. It has been twice submitted by the General Assembly and once adopted by the people. That adoption was nullified by a failure to advertise the amendment within the prescribed 90 days. The necessary advertising has now been done. The whole question is in the hands of the voters, and both political parties have declared for adoption in their state platforms.

The prison contractor is opposed to adoption. It will put an end to his profits. Organized labor is a unit on wanting to see the amendment adopted. It will put an end to convict competition with free labor. It will put men at work on the roads where there is now a scarcity of labor.

In the state of Virginia, it was found that convict labor effected a saving of $1,500 a mile in the cost of building roads. In a score of other states, where this labor is used, it has been demonstrated that roads can be built with convict labor at half the cost of free labor. Convict labor on the roads has proved good for the state and good for the convict. It has helped him physically and morally. It has, in many instances, restored him to good citizenship, and a convict restored to good citizenship is an asset; a convict released to follow a life of crime is a liability.

If Kentucky wants the advantages that come from convict labor on the roads, all that will be necessary will be to vote Yes for the amendment. If Kentucky prefers to let the prison contractor get richer at her expense by continuing in effect a system of slavery, the amendment will be defeated.

But the voter who goes to the polls and fails to vote on the amendment will overlook an opportunity to do his county and the state good service.

ROBERT J. McBRIDE, JR.,
President Kentucky Good Roads Association.

Big Button Order

The F. A. Neider Co., of Augusta, Ky., manufacturers of auto trimmings, is in receipt of an order from an automobile company in Detroit for 154,000 gross of clinch buttons—more than 23,000,000—for immediate delivery. This is the largest order ever received by this company, and these buttons will furnish more than 200,000 automobiles. The order will keep the plant busy until Jan. 1.

Kentuckians on U. S. Pension Roll

There were 19,491 Kentuckians on the U. S. Pension rolls on July 16, the beginning of the fiscal year, according to a recent statement made by the Commissioner of Pensions. The amount paid to Kentucky pensioners during the last year was $4,313,894.

Two Million Men Crippled

There are now 2,000,000 men in Europe who have suffered the loss of limbs, faculties, or both as a result of injury in the war, according to Frank G. Gilbreth, of Providence, R. I., who has just returned from Germany, where he has been studying methods for giving employment to cripples. Mr. Gilbreth has been requested by Germany to instruct a corps of teachers how to enable cripple fighting men to become productive members of society after the war. A paper by Mr. Gilbreth, read before the society of American engineers said that the problem of designing machines for cripples must be solved in the near future.

Splendid Record

Mr. S. P. Perrine, of Maysville, is spending a few days with his nephew, D. P. Lathrum. Mr. Perrine is a staunch Democrat and has not missed a primary or a regular election in 52 years in Madison county. He has served five years as deputy, and eight years as high sheriff of that county. He is 75 years old and is as lively as a boy.—Georgetown Times.

To Wed in January.

Hon. Thomas Slatery, of Mayville United States Attorney, for the Eastern Kentucky District, has had the good fortune to win for himself a life partner. His engagement has just been announced to Miss Marie Ratterman, of Cincinnati. The wedding will take place, the coming January. Since graduating from the Law Department of Centre College, Mr. Slatery has made for himself a splendid name in the legal fraternity in Kentucky. He had a very large and lucrative practice at his home, Mason, and surrounding counties, when he was chosen to be District Attorney by Senator James some two years ago. He is a fluent speaker, a brilliant lawyer and an all round good fellow. We extend to our old friend hearty congratulations.

Martha Washington's Will

The will of Martha Washington has been presented to the State of Virginia, by J. Pierpont Morgan. In his letter, Mr. Morgan insisted on the absolute right of possession as maintained by his father and later by himself, through the purchase of the Martha Washington will, but he disposes of the suit brought against him by the Commonwealth of Virginia in the United States Supreme Court, by resuming the document to Virginia on patriotic grounds and because of his admiration for the people and traditions of Virginia. The will was drawn in 1800, probated in 1802, and stolen from the archives of Fairfax county in 1863 by a Federal soldier.

Narrow Escape

While motoring to Lexington Monday morning in the rain, Dr. G. G. Perry lost control of his big Buick touring car, and smashed into a telephone post. The doctor had reached up to knock the water off the top when the steering wheel slipped in the wet and caused it to swerve onto the side of the road. One fender was smashed, a hub knocked off, and the water tank on the radiator punctured. The doctor and his party, composed of Mrs. Perry, Mrs. W. C. Shanks and Miss Anne Davis McRoberts, managed to creep within a few miles of Lexington when the engine became so hot that relief had to be phoned for. The car was left in a garage in Lexington and the crowd had to take the train home.—Stanford Interior Journal.

President Wilson Urges The Election of Stanley.

President Woodrow Wilson is urging the election of Hon. A. O. Stanley for Governor of Kentucky. On October 20 he sent the following letter to Senator Ollie James expressing his interest in the Kentucky campaign and his earnest desire for the election of Mr. Stanley: "The White House, Washington, Oct. 20, 1915.—My Dear Senator: I have been following with the greatest interest the progress of the campaign in Kentucky and am very much interested to observe what just grounds of confidence the party has of success in your great State. My own association with Mr. Stanley has given me an impression of strength, capacity, intelligence and integrity, which makes me feel that his election as Governor of the State will constitute a triumph to which the party can look with special pride, because it is always a matter of pride to serve a great State by putting the very best man at her disposal for public service.

"Will you convey to Mr. Stanley my warmest good wishes and my confident hopes for his complete success? Cordially and sincerely yours,

Woodrow Wilson.

President Wilson need not entertain any fears for the defeat of Mr. Stanley and the entire Democratic ticket, as the people of Kentucky are going to pile up the greatest majority ever given a candidate for Governor. We predict it will be 40,000.

Fish Eating Ponies.

"The Shetland peasants, as soon as the cold comes on, turn their ponies out to shift for themselves," said a horse dealer. "On those high, rocky, barren islands, amid the powerful and cold winds of winter, the ponies live on heather and seaweed, and it is indubitable that in their hunger they even scour the wild coast for dead fish. It is this life of exposure that gives the Shetland pony his shaggy coat. What gives him his kind and gentle disposition is the fact that he is brought up with the dogs and children.

To Protect Kentucky Forest.

If Bell county, where 25,000 acres already have been plowed and 100,000 are in sight, forms a county forest fire protective organization, the whole block of counties in Southeastern Kentucky will be so organized. From Madison county line through Jackson, Clay, Leslie and Harlan to the Virginia border, and from Floyd and Pike in the Sandy Valley down through Knott, Letcher, Harlan and Bell to the Tennessee line, McCreary county is organizing and Whitley is about to do so.

State Forester Barton plans to organize this vast section, embracing both Pine and Black mountains, with their outcroppings and foothills, as a whole with the counties as the units—consolidating his positions against counterattacks by fire. Permanent lookout stations on Pine and Black mountains would be located. One already exists at Letcher.—Courier-Journal.

The Good Old World

Some people knock the poor old world; And say it's getting worse; Some look for golden gates impierled; As per the Scripture verse; But this world is what you make it, And despite old Adam's fall, Somehow it seems a good old world To live in, after all.

There may be lots of shadders here, And sorrow all around, But if you are looking for good cheer, There's plenty to be found; There's the music of the waters, And the bobolink's glad call. And somehow, it's a good old world To live in, after all.

Of all God's creatures man alone Is sad and discontent, And seems to think he ought to own The whole big firmament. The birds and bees and butterflies, And beasts and things that crawl Believe that it's a good old world To live in, after all.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY by George V. Hobart

John Henry on Human Nature

SAY! Did you ever sit around in the Pullman Car and study a few paragraphs from the world's most famous text book—human nature?—you'll learn a lot.

For instance, during a trip recently on one of Mr. Pullman's sleep-wagons I soon learned that the hick and hreezy crew in the seats around me were comradial travelers, and they were fanning each other with fairy tales about the goods they sold.

I learned that the one who looked like a human apple was affectionately known as Slim because he's so fat that every time he turns around he meets himself coming back.

And it wasn't hard to learn that the tall one with the sandy hair was Nick Dalrymple, who goes after the oranges for a hardware house in Columbus and knows everybody in the world—has one family living in Yonkers.

Then there was Tod Gilpin, who cuts ice for a match factory in New York, and he's the life of a small party. Tod's main hold is to creep into the "reading room" of a Rube hotel after the chores are done of an evening and throw salt at the come-ons. Tod tells them that their town is the brightest spot on the map, and they warm up to him and want to buy him sarsaparilla and root beer. Then when he gets them stuck on themselves he sells them matches.

Presently I learned that the party with the mauve forehead and the magenta mustache was Mutt Dawson—the most reckless spendthrift with his words and the meanest man to the English language I ever listened to.

The Dream Builders' Association was in full session when Wedge Murray came over and weighed in with the party.

Wedge is a saucy little party, five foot four, with three foot shoulders. I learned that Wedge sells canned shirt waists for the Shlue Brothers, and if he's ever let into the firm it will be as a brother.

Wedge is one of those goose-headed stinks who scratch gravel and spit in to make a killing every time they see a pretty girl.

Across the aisle sat two pet cats.

He sat on the arm of the seat and steamed up.

In less than a minute he crowded the information on them that he was a millionaire who had escaped from Los Angeles, California, and he was just going to put them both in grand opera, when Slim toddled over to him and said: "Next stop Erie! You told me to remind you to send that telegram to your wife in Loganport."

"Curse it!"

Of course the fact that Wedge didn't have a wife in Loganport or elsewhere made no difference. He couldn't prove an alibi, so he fed out into the day coach and became as one who isn't.

The Roast-Beef Sisters seemed to be all carved up about something or other.

While these more or less grin-producing incidents were occurring there was ever present in my own noodle the grim reality that bedtime was approaching and I had drawn an upper berth.

Say! I'll be one of a party of six to go before Congress and tell all I know about an upper berth.

As a place to tie up a small bundle of sleep a holler factory has it beat to a whistle.

Strong men weep every time the ticket agent says, "Nothing left but an upper," and lovely women have hysterics and begin to make faces at the general public when the colored porter points up in the air and says, "Madam, your eagle's nest is ready far up the mountainside."

While the porter was cooking up my attack of insomnia I went out in the smoking room to drown my sorrow, but I found such a bunch of sorrow killers out there ahead of me that I had to hold the comb and brush in my lap and sit up on the towel rack while I took a little smoke.

Did you ever notice on your travels that peculiar hog on the train who pays two dollars for a berth and always displaces eight dollars' worth of space in the smoking car?

If he would bite the end of a piece of rope and light up occasionally he wouldn't be so bad, but nix on the smoke for him.

He simply sits there with a face like a fish and keeps George Nicotine buffet car on the train, so he offered to buy the drinks.

"Don't you believe that all men are born equal?" inquired the Kansas Cityite.

"Yes, but some of them have pull enough to get over it," responded the Providence philosopher; whereupon the smokeless hog by the window took out a flask and began to dampen his conscience.

Just then the towel rack fell with a crash, and after I picked up the comb and brush and myself I decided to retire to my bracket on the wall and try to sleep.

When I left the smoker the smokeless hog was occupying two and a half seats and was now hushy breathing in some second-hand cigarette smoke which nobody seemed to care for.

"How do I reach my Alpine hangar?" I said to the porter, whereupon he laughed toothfully and hit me on the shins with a stepladder.

The spectacular gent who occupied the star chamber beneath my garret curtain.

"Their Names Were Millie and Tillie."

was sleeping as noisily as possible, and when I started up the stepladder he began to render Mendelssohn's obligato for the trombone in the key of G.

Above the roar of the train from away off in lower No. 2 faintly I could hear an answering huckle call.

I climbed up prepared for the worst and in the twinkling of an eye the porter removed the stepladder and there I was, sitting on the perilous edge of my pantry shelf with nothing to comfort me save the exhaust of a professional snorer.

After about five minutes devoted to a parade of all my sins, I began to try to extract my personality from my coat, but when I pushed my arm up in the air to get the sleeve loose my knuckle struck the hardwood finish and I fell backward on the cast-iron pillows, breathing hoarsely like a busy jackrabbit.

If you've a ten minutes' while my brain was bobbing back and forth with the excitement of running fifty miles an hour over a careless part of the country, and then I cautiously tried to approach my shoe laces.

If you've a ten minutes' while my brain was bobbing back and forth with the excitement of running fifty miles an hour over a careless part of the country, and then I cautiously tried to approach my shoe laces.

And this goes double for the man who weighs more than 200 pounds. Every time I reached for my feet to get my shoes off I bumped my head off, so I decided to try to keep my head on I had better keep my shoes on also.

Then I tried to divorce my suspenders from my shoulders but just as I got the suspenders half way over my head I struck my crazy bone on the raters, and there I was, suspended between heaven and earth, but praying with all my heart for a bottle of amica.

Finally I decided to sleep as nature made me, with all my clothes on, including my rubbers.

So I stretched out, but just then the train struck a curve and I went up in the air till the ceiling hit me, and then I bounced over to the edge of the precipice and hung there, trembling on the verge.

Below me all was dark and gloomy, and only by the hoarse groans of the smokers could I tell that the Pullman company was still making money.

Luck was with me, however, for just then the train struck an in-shoot curve which pushed me to the wall, and I bumped my head so completely that I fell asleep.

When I woke up a small package of daylight was peeping into the car, so I decided to descend from my cupboard shelf at once.

I peeped out through the aluminum curtains, but there was no sign of the colored porter and the stepladder was invisible to the naked eye.

The car was peaceful now, with the exception of a gent in lower No. 4, who had a strange hold on a Bee-thoven sonata and was heating the cadence out of it.

I made a short prayer and concluded to fall to bed, but then one of my feet rested on something solid, so I put both feet on it and began to step down.

Alas, however, the moment I put my weight on it my stepping stone gave way and I fell overboard with a splash.

"How dare you put your feet on my head?" yelled the man on the ground noor of my bedroom.

"Excuse me, I felt like something wooden," I whispered, while I dashed madly for the smoker.

From that day to this I have never been able to look a Pullman car in the face, and whenever anybody mentions an upper berth to me I lose my presence of mind and get peevish.

If you have ever been there yourself I know you don't blame me! Do you?

"The Moment I Put My Weight on It My Stepping-Stone Gave Way."

aries from Plainfield, New Jersey. They were members of the Soubrette Singing Society, and they were en route to the West to join the "Bunch of Birds Dumbque Company."

Their names were Millie and Tillie, and they wore Feather Duster hats. Millie was fully aware that she could hack Duse off the map, and Tillie was ready to bet a week's salary that she could make Bernhardt feel like she was out in the storm we had had before yesterday.

Tod called them the Roast-Beef Sisters. Rare and Well Done.

In a minute the castors on Wedge's neck began to turn.

Nick put the others wise with a wink, so they lit the fire and began to cook it up.

Wedge's heart was warming for the birds in the gilded cage.

"Nothing into it!" said Slim. "It's a plain case of Appomattox. The war is over and they are yours, Wedge!"

Wedge turned a few more volts into his twinkling lamps.

"Lower your mainsail, Wedge, and drop alongside; you've made the landing," suggested Nick.

Wedge began to feel his necktie and play patty-cake with the little hair spot on the top of his head.

"Stop the hansom and get out; you're at your corner," said Tod.

The Sweet Dreams across the way were giving Wedge the glorious eye-roll, and he felt that dinner was ready.

"Hang up your hat, Wedge, and gather the myrtle with Mary!" Slim chirped in.

Then Wedge bounced over and began to show Millie and Tillie what a handsome brute he was at close quarters.

A Queer Marriage Custom.
In the Loocoo Islands there are some curious marriage customs. One consists in the bridegroom going around to all his friends' houses and permitting them to dress him up in any ridiculous style that they fancy. Sometimes the happy man is arrayed in a garishly painted kimono, the sleeves of which are tied up with a string laden with bells, toys and trumpets. A mask is then put on and a red hat, the "rig-out" being completed by an empty kerchief tied, which rattles noisily along as he walks.

What Are Children?
What are children? Flowers—they are the flowers of the invisible world. Indestructible, self-perpetuating flowers, each with a multitude of angels and evil spirits underneath its leaves, tolling and wrestling for dominion over it.

Blossoms—they are the blossoms of another world, whose fragrance is angels and archangels. Or dewdrops—they are dewdrops that have their source not in the chambers of the earth nor among the vapors of the sky, which the next breath of wind or the next dash of sunshine may dry up forever. But among the everlasting fountains and inexhaustible reservoirs of mercy and love.—John Lane.

A Pretty Frock of White Net and Silver

THIS model shows the effective use of net, which is more in vogue than ever for evening frocks. The gown is particularly lovely as a bit of silver coloring is prettily introduced in the design. The fancy brocade petticoat is veiled with white net embroidered in silver flowers and is enriched by a silver banding around the bottom which is edged with beads and sometimes held out with a flexible wire at the lower edge.

adorned with garnitures of fancy beaded rose flowers. Both the style of the dress and the material used in its making are attractive and youthful, and silver beaded kid clippers give a unique finish to the frock.

Sleeves on some of the new evening frocks are no more than little ruffles, sometimes of tulle edged with beads and sometimes held out with a flexible wire at the lower edge.

A Pretty Novelty in Neckwear

NECKWEAR means an introduction to high collar effects which are not so easy to wear, but which are exceptionally smart. The materials used for the newest collar and cuff sets are sheer linen, organdie and batiste, and marquisette in combination with hand embroidery and crepe is a novelty of the better class.

A very pretty collar and cuff set is here shown. The fluted frill collar and cuffs are of fine white organdie, finished with narrow black grosgrain ribbon. This set, intended for wear with a one piece frock, is especially becoming to the tall, thin woman, as the collar is sufficiently high and graceful to conceal the long lines of a slender neck.

Silver and other metal tissues are used, veiled with transparent materials such as mousseline de sole, net, tulle and chiffon.

Buttons seem an odd hat trimming, yet three big white pearl buttons are fastened on the twisted ribbon band that encircles the crown of a broad trimmed black velvet hat.

"KENTUCKY HOSPITALITY"

All Delegates to Lexington Convention Will Be Entertained by Local Suffragists.

The suffragists of the Fayette Equal Rights Association desire to entertain all delegates to the annual convention of the Kentucky Equal Rights Association in Lexington Nov. 8-10. Mrs. F. W. Clark, 365 S. Ashland avenue, Lexington, Ky., is chairman of the Hospitality Committee, and it is requested that all persons who expect to attend the Lexington convention as delegates send their names and addresses at once to Mrs. Clark, that she may arrange for their entertainment. Headquarters of the convention will be at the Phoenix Hotel and all business and night sessions of the convention will be held there, except that of the opening night, when Mrs. Snowden speaks at the Lexington Opera House. A banquet will be given in the ballroom of the Phoenix Tuesday evening, for which tickets may be secured in advance, price $1.00, from Mrs. J. B. Judah, 2115 Murray avenue, Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Clarence Lebus, of Lexington, is the local chairman in charge of banquet arrangements.

MRS. DESHA BRECKINRIDGE, Of Lexington, President of the K. E. R. A., ends her three-year term of office as President at the annual meeting to be held in Lexington, Nov. 8-10, and her successor will be chosen. The membership of the K. E. R. A. has gone up since November, 1912, when Mrs. Breckinridge came into office, from 1,779 members to over 15,000, an increase typical of the rapid advance of suffrage sentiment everywhere in the last few years.

MADAME ROSIKA SCHWIMMER, of Buda Pest, Hungary, will deliver her wonderful address on Peace at the suffrage convention in Lexington, Tuesday, November 9. Madame Schwimmer came to this country in 1914 as the representative of the women's organizations of many countries to plead for concerted intervention of the neutral nations for cessation of hostilities in Europe. None who heard her fiery eloquence, her impassioned pleading, her description of what she said was not war but "the destruction of Europe and of civilization" can soon forget. After the International Congress of Women at The Hague Madame Schwimmer was one of the delegation of three women, of whom Jane Addams is the one best known to Americans, to wait upon the rulers of six European countries.

MRS. SAMUEL HENNING, Of Louisville, Auditor of the K. E. R. A., was Miss Julia Duke, daughter of General Basil Duke, himself a believer in woman suffrage, as are many of the Confederate veterans of Kentucky, and a niece of that other beloved Confederate leader, John Morgan. Mrs. Henning has recently concluded a term as President of the Louisville Woman Suffrage Association.

Ministers Endorse Suffrage. The ministers of the Northern Methodist Church of Kentucky adopted in September strong resolutions endorsing woman suffrage. At the state convention of the Christian Church even more ringing and specific resolutions were adopted. With the moral forces of the state lining up in active support of the woman suffrage cause, the question will soon become a "paramount issue" in Kentucky. The Kentucky Federation of Labor stands all ways for suffrage. The Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, numbering 18,000 women, has repeatedly endorsed woman suffrage.

MRS. T. J. SMITH, Of Frankfort, is the state member for the K. E. R. A. of the Executive Committee of the National Woman Suffrage Association. She is the niece of Miss Laura Clay. The life-long interest of her mother and her aunt in the suffrage cause has been inherited by Mrs. Smith. As former President of the Federation of Women's Clubs and as the wife of the State Bank Examiner, Mrs. Smith has come into contact with and made friends of persons in every part of Kentucky.

It is a weekly paper, good print and good paper. Price $1.00 a year, six months 50c, four months 35c. NOTICE TO THE VOTERS

Sept. 30, 1915. To The Voters of Madison County. I am addressing you in the interest of my candidacy to represent the county in the next Legislature. I wish to say I have always had a desire to represent the county to that body, because of my varied experience in matters pertaining to what I deem to be for the best interests of the State.

In the first place, I was born and reared upon the farm and am still a farmer, believe I know what is the best interests of the farmers, and at the same time, believe there should be nothing passed through and enacted into legislation that would prove detrimental to other callings or legitimate business of any kind; and having been engaged as a merchant and having a general knowledge of business and the needs of the general public, I believe I can represent all classes fairly and to the best interests of the State.

For many years I have taught in the public schools of the county, as to my qualifications and ability to represent the county, I refer to those who know me best: I have never in my life tasted intoxicating liquors, and believe in the strict enforcement of the County Unit Law, and favor the enforcement of all laws.

I favor a better taxing system, and lower taxes; longer school terms and few changes in school books; last but not least, I believe in good roads economically constructed.

While I have always affiliated with the Republican party, I am not a partisan and do not entertain bitter feelings for the Democracy, and will greatly appreciate any Democratic aid that may be given me.

I solicit your votes irrespective of party, and if elected, shall endeavor to act honestly in the discharge of the duties that come upon me, doing in every instance what I deem to be the best interests of all.

Yours Truly, G. B. Moore.

Summing Up the Evidence

Many Richmond People Have Been Called As Witnesses.

Week after week has been published the testimony of Richmond people—kidney sufferers—backache victims—people who have endured many forms of kidney, bladder or urinary disorders. These witnesses have used Doan's Kidney Pills. All have given their enthusiastic approval. It's the same everywhere. 30,000 American men and women are publicly recommending Doan's—always in the home papers. Isn't it a wonderful, convincing mass of proof? If you are a sufferer your verdict must be "Try Doan's first."

Mrs. Nelson Ross, 419 Laurel St., says: "My kidneys were irregular in action and I had pains through my back. At times I was nervous and dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Middleton's Drug Store, soon made me feel better in every way."

PRISON FARM SHOWS PROFIT

Experiment of Board of Prison Commissioners Solves Problem

MEANS SAVING TO TAXPAYERS

Interesting Statement Issued by Warden A. J. G. Wells, of the Kentucky State Reformatory—State Farm Shows Profit of $4,826.81 During Fourteen Months.

Frankfort, Ky.—(Special).—The experiment of employing the prisoners of the state on the State Farm seems to be a decided success. After a thorough trial of the plan of the Board of Prison Commissioners and Warden Wells, there is a net profit to the state of $4,826.81 in fourteen months.

At the request of R. C. Terrell, Commissioner of Roads, A. J. G. Wells, Warden of the Kentucky State Reformatory, has prepared a statement covering the period the plan has been in operation. Warden Wells covers his two years' experience with a limited number of prisoners on the State Farm. Mr. Wells said in part:

"The Legislature of 1914 authorized by law the lease of a farm, with an option of purchase at the end of the lease. In accordance therewith, the Board of Prison Commissioners, on recommendation of myself, as Warden, and with the approval of the Sinking Fund Commissioners, of which the Governor is a member, leased the Mastin farm, consisting of 462 acres, about 1 1/2 miles from the prison, and in the bend of the Kentucky river, just opposite the new capitol, for an annual rental of $3,000 per year. The Legislature adjourned on March 19, 1914, negotiations were carried on with several landowners and a contract concluded. The farm was put to work on the farm April 10, 1914. This, of course, was too late to get the best results the first year. This late start, which was unavoidable, and the severe drought which followed, made it a trying test for the first year, but in spite of both of these serious handicaps, even this year made a most satisfactory showing.

"A summary of expenditures and receipts of the farm, from April, 1914, to July 1, 1915, shows a net gain of $4,826.81, after charging the farm with all labor at the same average price paid inside the prison. Moreover, this net gain does not take into account many crops that had not developed sufficiently for accurate invoice on said date. These crops are as follows: 10 acres of tobacco, 25 acres of late Irish potatoes, 1 acre of sweet potatoes, 8 acres sugar cane, 7 acres turnips, 2 1/2 acres cabbage, 15 acres beans, 5 acres green peas, 1/2 acre cucumbers, 1 acre carrots, 6 acres melons.

"The season since July 1 has continued good, and the products above named have added very materially to the balance above stated. We have, since July 1, put to use in the prison 12,000 gallon cans of beans, tomatoes, corn and apples. All the cattle and hogs are slaughtered at the farm, and sold to the prison at less price than the balance above stated. The meat institutions similarly situated, and the products of the farm, are sold to the prison at less price than the balance above stated. The meat institutions similarly situated, and the products of the farm, are sold to the prison at less price than the balance above stated.

"The farm, on account of its proximity to the prison and its splendid isolation, is ideally located. There are no other farms in the vicinity of limestone, and within a few feet of the railroad and the Kentucky river. A rock crusher of sufficient capacity at this point, operated by prison labor, could easily supply a large demand for road material throughout the state.

"The railroad and river facilities for shipment should insure reasonable transportation rates. In my opinion, there is no place in the market which furnishes so many attractive features for the farmer as the prison farm. The better health of the prison population resulting is within itself a large asset.

"It might be interesting in this connection to state that out of 179 prisoners sent to the farm at different times, only 4 have escaped, and 2 of them returned. These prisoners remain at the farm at night, and while they are under the direction and guard of Capt. J. P. Schorbus, they have, necessarily, many opportunities to escape. If they were so inclined, 1 or 2 of them would not be so easily returned. These prisoners, indiscriminately, can be trusted on the outside.

"We are tempted, as far as surrounding circumstances would permit, to exercise good judgment in their selection for this work. My estimate is that possibly 25 per cent of the prison population could be worked on the outside, and the production of road material and the production of road material, by the use of prison labor.

"A great deal will depend upon the plan adopted and selection of the agent, or agents, who shall execute the plan.

"If such a venture is to be made by the state, a bill should be carefully drawn, after mature consultation with those who have had actual and successful experience in the handling of prisoners, and before the meeting of the Legislature. No half-baked, hastily considered plan, should be passed in this connection."

Wireless Station.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The powerful wireless station at Arlington, Va., is now being "turned up" for a talk with Tokyo. It is the hope and expectation of the experts before long to girdle the globe with the wireless telephone.
Radio experts are enthusiastic over the future following their successful transmission of the human voice from Washington to Paris and to Honolulu at the same time, as was done in the experiments of last night.
Before trying to talk with Tokyo direct the experts are arranging to open communication from this city with the Government's wireless station at Godova, Alaska.

Card To The Public.

I was a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Clerk in our recent Democratic primary. I made a clean fight without the aid of election frauds. Our present nominee, Mr. James Wagers, was my opponent. Only one could be nominated and I was defeated and Mr. Wagers won. It is my wish, and I believe it will be granted, that every friend of mine will vote the straight Democratic ticket. I insist that every friend who voted for me in the primary, do his utmost to elect Mr. Wagers. The reports that have been circulated that I and my friends will not support Mr. Wagers are utterly unfounded and false. The Republican scheme of soliciting Democrats to give a complimentary vote to Mr. Grider, is undemocratic and objectionable to me. I hope that no one will fall into the trap.
Respectfully,
H. M. SAMUELS.

Senator Stone Here.

Senator W. J. Stone, of Missouri, one of the most forceful and forensic public speakers in the United States, spoke to a great crowd of Madison county people at the court house in this city Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. He was introduced by Judge W. R. Shackelford in one of his happiest vein. The court room was well filled. The distinguished visitor defended President Wilson and his splendid administration in a beautiful and forceful manner, and denounced the shortcomings and treachery of the Republican party in such caustic terms that it would make the cheek of the rabid Republican glow with the hectic flush of shame. He paid a glowing tribute to Hon. A. O. Stanley, the Democratic nominee for Governor. He told of the splendid work accomplished by this matchless leader and gallant friend of the great common people during his twelve years faithful service in Congress. He not only urged the election of Stanley, but the entire Democratic ticket. For nearly two hours he held the great crowd spellbound in his elucidation of the glories and beauties of the Democracy of the State and Nation, and portraying the disruption of the Republican party. Throughout his speech he was frequently and roundly applauded, and the applause of the vast crowd reverberated and re-echoed through the grand old building, as the mighty defender stood in majestic pride and upheld the traditions and principles of true Democracy. It was a great speech and will result in much good to the party. The Democracy of Madison county was indeed fortunate in securing the services of Senator Stone, although the party is in fine shape and the county will give the ticket loyal support.

Senator Stone was born and reared in Madison county, near Richmond, but emigrated to Missouri when quite a young man. The majority of Kentuckians are well acquainted with his history, which has been brilliant and illustrious. He has been signally honored by the people of his adopted State, and he has served them long and faithfully. Madison county is proud of him, and her people have just cause to be. While here the distinguished visitor was royally entertained and was greeted by many old acquaintances.

Club Notes.

The State Conference of the Daughters of the Revolution will be held in Frankfort October 27 and 28, and arrangements are being made to look after the entertainment and comfort of the visiting delegates by the two local chapters. Among the entertainments will be a reception by Governor McCreary and a buffet luncheon by the Susanna Hart Shelby Chapter, N. S. D. A. R. On the evening of Oct. 26th the Boonesborough Chapter, D. A. R. has been invited to a reception at the Capitol Hotel given by the Frankfort Chapter.

The Woman's Club of State University met Friday afternoon in Dean Hamilton's office at the University for the first meeting of the year. The club passed a resolution offered by Mrs. W. T. Laffery endorsing the work of the Vice Commission of Lexington and pledging the support of the club for that work. Mrs. Laffery, chairman of the dormitory committee, reported to the club that the dormitories are now in the best condition they have ever been in since she began inspecting them. They have been painted and cleaned thoroughly and are in some cases quite artistic and in all cases as home-like and comfortable as possible to make them. The club is offering several prizes for the best rooms in the dormitories this year.—Lexington Herald.

Dean Anna J. Hamilton a member of the Art Committee has charge of an exhibit this week at State University. The Pierian Club, of Lawrenceburg has bought a building site paying for the same $1,600.

The philanthropic spirit of the Shelbyville Woman's Club, is shown by the fact that it is backing the colored King's Daughters' Circle in building a hospital for their race in that town.

Dates have been arranged for the traveling gallery of slides of American paintings to appear at the Lexington High School and at Harrodsburg, Danville and Hopkinsville clubs.

Mrs. Zubrod is calling the clubmen's attention to some recent honors that have come to Kentucky artists. The praise given Mr. Charles Snead Williams' work at a Milwaukee exhibit; Miss Katherine Welch's medal for work in miniature, awarded at a New York exhibit; the admiration accorded Miss Katherine Helm's Lexington exhibit of portraits done from daguerotypes, and Musselman's success as a teacher of modern art in New York.—Louisville Herald.

Preparations are nearing completion for the entertainment by the local Woman's Clubs, which will meet in Henderson, Ky., Wednesday, Oct. 27, for a two-day session. Delegates from every club in the district, which includes Henderson, Webster, Hopkins, Christian and all counties in the State to the west of these counties, will be in attendance and several women notable in Woman's club work throughout the West will take part in the program. Mrs. N. J. Hills, of Paducah, chairman of the district will preside at all sessions.

Mrs. C. L. Chamberlain is chairman of the Second District organization of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, which will hold its annual convention at Bowling Green this week. As chairman she will preside over the deliberations of the delegates. This convention will be the center of interest for Kentucky clubwomen this week.

A general program of work to stimulate and encourage the love and study of art is being carried forward by the Art Department in the Kentucky Federation. Mrs. Alfred Zubrod, of Lexington, and her associates are gathering and giving out news of pictures and paintings and all the while looking forward to such large things as an art museum and a State Art Commission.

Fifty thousand women, in the most magnificent appeal that any cause has ever known in New York, strode up Fifth Avenue to Washington Square and Fifty-ninth Street Oct. 23rd, in the name of woman's suffrage.

The most wonderful dignity attended it all.—Louisville Herald.

Mrs. J. G. Crabbe, State Chairman of the Federation Press is being highly commended for her efficient work in this department.

Local Club Notes

The Woman's Club of Richmond held a meeting of unusual interest on Monday the 25th.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. J. G. Crabbe, chairman of the Department of Community Interests, outlined very happily her program for the year. She then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Judge Grant E. Lilly, whose subject was: Our City.

Its Government.
Its City Officials and their Salaries.
City Laws.
City ordinances and their enforcement.

Following a charming description of the national beauties and acquired advantages of the little city "lying at the foothills of the Cumberland Mountains," Judge Lilly took up in brief detail the several divisions of his subject, giving in the simplest and clearest way, much information on each. He illustrated very vividly the difference between a law and an ordinance.

Estill Oil Fields.

The shallow sand field of Estill county is one of the best examples of an abandoned district coming back. Eastern operators have been drilling in that territory with good results, the latest completion showing a production of 30 barrels daily. A number of other wells are now going down, and arrangements are being made for a restoration of the pipe line which formerly gave an outlet for the county's production. Estill county contains a sand distinct from any other formation encountered by upper Kentucky operators. Paying petroleum is found at a depth ranging from 200 to 300 feet; light operating expense making the district a good proposition.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Rural Institute at North Middletown.

Rev. E. B. Barnes attended a rural institute at the above mentioned place last Thursday and Friday, and reports it to be one of the most helpful meetings ever held in this part of the State. The live modern church building is an achievement in itself for a rural community, seating four or five hundred comfortably, with all modern equipment. It has the distinction of being the only church in the community, hence there is the concentration of all efforts, and no denominational waste. Lectures were given on many branches of agriculture, dairying, and stock raising, Sunday School and Church work, and other phases of the community life.

The special lecturer was Rev. T. M. McPherson, of New York State, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Ithaca, who spoke twice each day from Monday until Friday. The institute was promoted by Walter E. Frazer, Secretary of Sunday School work for the Christian church in this State, and he is entitled to much praise. Over 350 attended from a distance which with the local attendance kept the auditorium well filled, and gave each speaker a fine hearing. The ladies entertained all visitors at dinner every day, and the homes of these excellent people were opened in accordance with traditions of Kentuckians for hospitality. Autos met the trains at Paris and conveyed all visitors to their destination without accident, or even a puncture.

Mrs. Caperton and mother, Mrs. Thomas Phelps motored to Lexington Monday for the day.

Brewer and daughter, Mr. Ernest Snowden, Mr. and Mrs. Strode Emons, Mr. and Mrs. Anell Parks, son and daughter, loaded up two Overland cars about 9:30 Sunday and were off for a sight-seeing trip through Paint Lick, Lancaster, Danville, Harrodsburg and Shakerstown. Down beneath the high cliffs of the river, a nice little spot was located, where a sumptuous dinner was spread, after which they returned thru Wilmore, High Bridge, Lexington and back to Richmond, reaching home at 6 p. m. making a distance of about 120 miles. The Story of Yesterday's Flowers.

"I WILL tell you stories tonight the story of Yesterday's flowers," said daddy.

"It happened in a rose garden, through which Yesterday was wandering. She was a dear old lady with silvery hair, for you know, kiddies, Yesterday is a lovely person who grows very old in a day.

"Yesterday was really a ghost, for she passes in a day, and so you see it was not she at all. And she wandered around the rose garden with her silvery hair and her staff, and her eyes were as blue as the summer sky of the new day, and her cheeks even in old age retained their pinkish softness.

"And she wandered about the garden, looking for her flowers, poor Yesterday's flowers. There had been roses and sweet peas and geraniums and dahlias and ever so many other flowers, all beautiful in color and with the sweetest scents you can imagine. They had bloomed in profusion, making the garden a lovely place to visit, and poor Yesterday had so enjoyed herself among her flowers in that exquisite place.

"And Yesterday beheld many beautiful flowers, but she was not at all satisfied, for she knew her own blooms, and these were not among them.

"So the poor old lady ghost of Yesterday lifted up her thin voice and wept.

"Oh, where are my lovely flowers that I cared so much for? she wailed. They were so beautiful for me and smelled so sweet, and the people in the great house yonder came to see them and smelled them and exclaimed over their richness, and now I cannot find them. Where are they?

"Then, to and fro, a lovely maiden who was walking in the garden said to the wailing ghost of Yesterday:

"Why are you crying, my poor, dear old lady? And who are you?

"Why," responded the other, "I am the old, white-haired ghost of Yesterday, and I am looking for my flowers that grew so large and sweet and lovely."

"Oh," answered the beautiful maiden, "I am Today, and the flowers you are now looking at are mine. Yours are withered and gone, my dear."

"Then the poor old lady ghost of Yesterday wept once more, but Today comforted her, saying:

"You mustn't cry, my dear. Your flowers comforted many people while you were alive, and they have served their purpose. Mine do the same today. Soon I shall be a dear old lady ghost like you. A little bird told me so. Then Tomorrow's flowers will comfort the world."

"Then the poor old lady ghost of Yesterday stopped crying, for she saw things as they have always been."

Votes for Women a Success

The Map Proves It

WHITE STATES: Full Suffrage. SHADED STATES: Transition, Read or School Suffrage. DOTTED STATES: Partial County and State, Municipal Suffrage. BLACK STATES: No Suffrage.

1914-NEVADA

Would any of these States have adopted EQUAL SUFFRAGE, if it had been a failure just across the Border?

THE suffrage map of 1915 may show four more "free" white states. New Jersey votes on the question of woman suffrage on October 12. New York and Pennsylvania at the November elections. The most significant events of the past week are the announcements by President Woodrow Wilson, Hon. Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War, and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, that as citizens of New Jersey they would on October 19 cast their ballots for woman suffrage and similar announcements from Mr. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury and son-in-law of the President, from Mr. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, and from Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Labor.

In short, President Wilson, his private secretary and every member of his Cabinet coming from a "campaign" state has declared his intention of voting for woman suffrage this fall. It looks as if the Democrats of the nation were coming out for democracy! What are the Democrats of the Kentucky Legislature going to do about it?

President Wilson begins his statement: "I intend to vote for woman suffrage in New Jersey because I believe that the time has come to extend that privilege and responsibility to the women of the state."

MRS. E. L. HUTCHINSON.

Of Lexington, First Vice President of the K. E. R. A., has recently been elected President of the Fayette Equal Rights Association. Mrs. Hutchinson is arranging for a series of lectures for Mrs. Philip Snowden under the auspices of the suffrage organizations of Kentucky. Dates so far arranged are: Covington, Nov. 5th; Richmond, 6th; Lexington, 8th; Frankfort, 12th; Louisville, 14th; Owensboro, 18th; Paducah, 19th. Some dates are still open. Though Mrs. Snowden has to break her Kentucky trip to keep engagements in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago, any town desiring Mrs. Snowden should apply to Mrs. E. L. Hutchinson, Lexington, Ky., for terms and dates.

MRS. J. D. HAYS.

Of Owensboro, the Third Vice President of the K. E. R. A., is prominently known as a club woman and for her excellent philanthropic work in her own city. Mrs. Hays was elected at the last meeting of the K. E. R. A. to fill a vacancy on the board.

The Colds Of Mankind Cured By Pine!

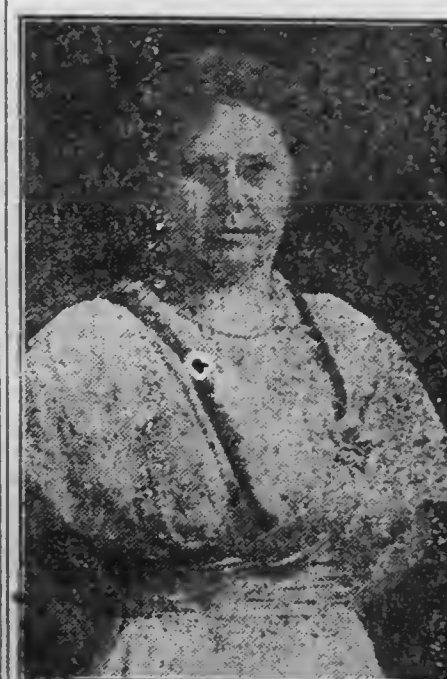

Have you ever gone through a typical pine forest when you had a cold? What a vigorous impulse is sent! How you opened wide your lungs to take in those invigorating and mysterious qualities. Yes, Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey possesses those stimulating qualities and overcomes hacking coughs. The inner lining of the throat is strengthened in its attack against cold germs. Every family needs a bottle constantly at hand 35c. adv.

"THE TIME HAS COME."

—President Woodrow Wilson.

A bill to submit to the voters of Kentucky an amendment to the constitution granting suffrage to women will be presented at the next Legislature. The submission of the question was endorsed by the Republican party in convention assembled. The Prohibition and Socialist parties stood, as they have always stood, for the principle of woman suffrage. The platform of the Progressive party adopted at its convention in Louisville contains this plank: "We desire to reiterate our belief in the just principle of woman suffrage and urge upon the next Legislature to submit the question to the voters of Kentucky."

The Democratic party is the only one in Kentucky which has failed to include a woman suffrage plank in its platform. The women of Kentucky will, nevertheless, appeal with some confidence to the Democratic members of the next Legislature to pass a submission bill, especially since the declaration of President Wilson and all the members of his Cabinet in states where the question is to be put to the issue this fall, that the woman suffrage question should be settled by appeal to the voters of each state.

MRS. CHARLES FIRTH.

Of Covington, Second Vice President of the K. E. R. A., has just returned from several weeks campaigning in the state of New Jersey. Mrs. Firth addressed audiences approximating 2,700 people, many of the meetings being held out of doors. In spite of a slight automobile accident in maneuvering for a position on the street in one city, Mrs. Firth kept all of her engagements, won many votes and returned home in good condition and on scheduled time. Mrs. Harry Whiteside, of Louisville, another Kentuckian, has been rendering signal service in the New Jersey campaign and will go later to New York. Mrs. Firth and Mrs. Whiteside will tell of campaign experiences at the Phoenix Hotel banquet.

Lesson V.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 31, 1915.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings xi, 4-12. Memory Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, Prov. xiv, 11—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Apart from the story of Ahab we have only considered the lives of Jeroboam, who made Israel to sin, and that of good King Asa. The story of the ten tribes and their kings was had all through, and, although Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel, yet he took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart, but departed not from the sins of Jeroboam (II Kings x, 31). As to Judah, the two tribes, Judah and Benjamin, who were the father, Asa, was a good king on the whole, but his fellowship with the king of Israel was bad, and he was reproved for it in these words: "Shouldst thou help the ungodly and love them that hate the Lord?" (II Chron. xviii, 1; xix, 2) See also II Chron. xx, 35. Jehoshaphat was succeeded by his son, Jehoram, who reigned only eight years, and made his mark decidedly for evil, for he married the daughter of that wicked king, Ahab, and Jezebel, and walked in the ways of the kings of Israel like the house of Ahab. He suffered terribly in his body and from his enemies, according to a message from the Lord by Elijah, and departed without being desired (II Chron. xxi, 5, 6; xii, 15; xviii, 20). All his sons were slain except the youngest, Ahaziah, and he became king at the age of forty-two and reigned only one year. He walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother, Athaliah, and others of the house of Ahab were his counselors to do wickedly (II Chron. xxi, 1-4). He was slain by Jehu, and when his mother saw that her son was dead she slew all the seed royal of the house of Judah, or thought she did. But the living God, who will let nothing of His word fall to the earth, was watching over the seed of the kingdom (II Kings x, 10; xi, 1, margin).

The sister of Ahaziah, who was the wife of Jehoshaphat the priest, somehow stole the baby Jehu and hid him and his nurse in a bedchamber in the house of God for six years, during which time Athaliah reigned over the land, and what a reign it must have been! (II Kings xi, 2, 3; II Chron. xxi, 10-12) But in due time deliverance always comes, and in the seventh year Jehoshaphat arranged to have Jehu proclaimed king, taking every precaution to have everything done in due order and to prevent any miscarriage of events. He gathered the Levites and the rulers and the captains by hundreds in the house of the Lord, and showed them the king's son and said, "Behold, the king's son shall reign, as the Lord hath said of the sons of David," and all the congregation made a covenant with the king in the house of God (verse 4 and II Chron. xxi, 1-3). As one day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day, one cannot help thinking of the seventh year when the devil, whom Athaliah so well represented, shall be shut up in the pit and there shall be a fulfillment of the words "Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion" (Ps. lxxv, 3). All through the book there are so many foretellings of the coming kingdom upon which our hearts should be constantly set, for all the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us (Rom. viii, 18). Jehoshaphat arranged all in his plans, with instructions to those with weapons to slay the king's son and to be brought forth the king's son and anoint him, crowned him, gave him the testimony and made him king, the people clapping their hands and saying, "God save the king" (verses 8, 11, 12). Jehoshaphat made a covenant between the Lord and the king and the people that they should be the Lord's people, and all the people of the land rejoiced, and the day was quiet.

Joash was seven years old when he began to reign (verses 17, 20, 21). They broke down the house of Baal and broke in pieces thoroughly his altars and his images and slew Athaliah, that wicked woman who the sword, and the priest appointed officers over the house of the Lord (verses 18, 20). It must have seemed like a change from hell to heaven for the people of Judah. What will it be for the whole world when a king shall reign in righteousness, and the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever. (Isa. xxxiii, 1, 17). The readers of these lessons must realize that I quote some passages very often, but it is because they mean so much to me. They are my meat and drink. May they all mean more to each of us! Joash is the youngest king of whom we read, but good King Josiah was but one year older when he began to reign (II Kings xxi, 1). Every good king was in some measure a type of Him who when He was but a babe was worshipped as King of the Jews (Matt. ii, 1, 2, 11), but who is still waiting for His kingdom. Joash was wonderfully preserved that the word of the Lord concerning David and his kingdom might not fail, and we may be quite certain that the other assurances to David which are not yet fulfilled shall be fulfilled to the letter in God's own good time and way. The promises of God are absolute certainties, and we may rest our whole weight upon them.

EXERCISE FOR BEAUTY.

The Wise Woman Never Closes Her Eyes to Defects.

The wise woman stands before her mirror every now and then and carefully scans her figure to discover any flaws that may be corrected. To do this satisfactorily it is necessary to have a full length mirror and a hand glass so that you can view yourself from every angle possible.

First notice your carriage. Is it erect and graceful, or does it droop forward from the waist? In these days it is more apt to be the latter, though fashion has at last consented to allow us to resume an erect carriage. If you have a disfiguring stoop correct it at once. It may be necessary to wear shoulder braces, which can be purchased at any drug store and are inexpensive.

Some of you will find a roll of superfluous fat between the shoulders which produces the effect of round shoulders. To correct this blemish throw away your pillow and sleep with your head and feet on the same level. Then cultivate the habit of standing erect and exercising whenever you have the opportunity, using this movement: Stand with the body erect and stretch the arms out on a level with the shoulders and twist them rapidly backward.

There is a preparation which will reduce this accumulation of flesh if it is applied every night, rubbing it thoroughly into the flesh. It is made of twelve ounces of alcohol and one ounce of iodine.

Many of you will find that your limbs are out of proportion; some will be too heavy, while others are too thin. To reduce the bulk of fat and make the muscles solid walk whenever you can and exercise by using such movements as will bring into play the muscles of the lower limbs.

To add flesh to the limbs massage them with olive or almond oil.

If your hips are out of proportion your figure is unattractive. Fashion demands straight lines and a small waist the next, but the ideal size of the hips does not vary.

If you have ever made a study of the old Greek statues you could not help being impressed by the beauty of the hip lines. The hip bones should be well covered, but there should be no flabby fat. If your hips are too large the only help for you is in exercise and massage. It is useless to diet, for you will only make the balance of your body proportionately thin, and the hips will still be a blemish.

In case you are not familiar with exercising here is a series of movements that will help in the hip reduction process. Stand erect, with heels together and hands placed firmly upon the hips. Swing the right leg slowly sideways, raising the foot as high as you can. Allow the weight of the body to rest entirely on the left foot while doing this exercise. Now repeat for twenty times or more until the muscles are tired; then shift the weight over to the right foot and kick in the same fashion with the left.

Stand with your weight on one foot and raise the foot slowly until it is on a level with the trunk. Lower the foot and continue the exercise until you are fatigued. Repeat the exercise with the other leg.

Stand erect and take the position that a swimmer assumes when he is ready to dive. Bend the trunk forward without bending the knees and touch the finger tips to the floor. When you feel tired stop and rest. This same exercise will keep down abdominal fat. Always remember if you desire to have a supple, graceful, beautifully formed body you must exercise. So make it a part of your daily life to correct the defects which detract from your attractiveness.

USES FOR CHERRIES.

Cherry Tarts.

Make a paste of one pint of pitted cherries, a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water. Put tart shells nearly full with this mixture and serve with cream.

Cherry Kisses.

Remove the soft part of some meringue kisses freshly made from the whites of eggs and powdered sugar. Place in the cavities pitted cherries that have been well sweetened, fill with sweetened and flavored whipped cream and serve at once.

Frozen Cherries.

Boil a cupful of sugar and two of water for about ten minutes. Add two cupfuls of cherry pulp that has been run through a colander. Pour into the freezer and chill; then add the beaten whites of two eggs and freeze. Serve with a large cherry on the top of each portion.

Cherry Sauce.

Cover a pint of cherries with a pint of water, add two cloves and simmer. When the cherries are soft run them through a sieve, return to the fire, add a teaspoonful of flour blended with a tablespoonful of butter, a little salt and cook two minutes. Stir in the juice of a lemon. Serve hot. Two tablespoonfuls of claret add to this sauce if there is no objection to the use of the wine.

Paragraphs From Stanley's Speeches.

"I unashamedly ground wire that connected the Senate of the United States with 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, between the desk of Nelson A. Aldrich and the home of the trusts."

"I had spread upon the record of Congress the checks and vouchers, the indisputable proof of their secret sins."

"Will the intelligent citizenship of Kentucky entrust a party with power that knows nothing of invisible government, or knowing is too timid or corrupt to give you its solemn pledge to destroy it?"

"I elected Governor of Kentucky 11 solemnly and earnestly pledge the people of the commonwealth here and now that I will turn the calcium light upon the lobbyist and upon all who seek to procure positions of honor or privilege by any secret of unholy alliance with him."

"The eyes of the President look down upon you. Where, oh where, is the Democrat at this crucial hour, who will prove recalcitrant to this mighty chief inspiring as a candidate, greater as a patient and constructive statesman, he is greatest as the wise, fearless, far-seeing diplomat, preserving at once inviolate the honor of his country and the peace of half the world."

"Not the creation but the equitable distribution of wealth is the great problem confronting the law makers of America."

"The party which had the stomach in 1896 to endure without reserve the resolute and patriotic course of W. L. Taylor has, at this good hour, never a word to say in commendation of either the Republicans, National or State administrations."

"The Republican platform contains no anti-trust plank, no pledge to curb corporate greed or punish corporate crime. The reason is not far to seek, it prefers to betray the people rather than offend the interests."

"If I am elected Governor of Kentucky my time will not be given to saying things but doing them."

"Though still living our President has already earned an immortal place even among those dead but seeped sovereigns, who still rule our spirits from the urns."

"Your failure, were failure possible, will appall the Democracy of America, and your victory will thrill with delight and inspire with new courage the militant Democracy of the nation."

Stanley's Wonderful Man.

The career of Owsley Stanley since boyhood has been most remarkable. By close study of political economy and by his indomitable will power, together with a large and extensive knowledge of men, he has been able to thoroughly understand the wants of the masses.

There is no man in the South so well qualified to render valuable services to the whole people as he. Take his career from the time of his induction into office and his every act has demonstrated that he possesses an unusual amount of business capacity and a mind that is as clear as crystal. While a member of Congress he was not classified as one of the ordinary representatives. He was always in the front row and what he said was not only eloquent but full of logic. No man received more absolute attention on all occasions than Stanley. White chairman of his committee he never knew what it was to become fatigued. With an untiring energy and magnificent ability he has proven that he is one of the political jacks of the present day.

Extracts From Mr. McChesney's Speech.

Lawrenceburg, October 18.—"I have come to Lawrenceburg today to urge all Democrats of this county to follow their usual custom and vote the straight Democratic ticket at the coming election."

"I entered the primary in good faith and I accept the result as a good Democrat ought, and shall give the whole ticket my loyal support."

"Majority rule is the cardinal principle of Democracy and for this campaign the majority has spoken and every Democrat should vote the straight ticket."

Stanley's manly course in urging the war department to waive all formalities and allow Mr. Morrow's brother to make public speeches in favor of the Republican ticket, plainly shows the keen sense of respect which he has for a foe.

GREAT OVATION

Given Hon. A. O. Stanley Here Thursday Night.

Thursday night was Stanley night in Richmond. It was a great outpouring of Democrats and many others who greeted Mr. Stanley at the court house in this city.

Thursday afternoon Chairman H. H. Colyer, Hon. L. B. Harrison and Mr. Thomas H. Pickels motored to Winchester to hear the distinguished statesman and orator deliver his message to the people of Clark county. At the conclusion of his address in that city, the above named gentlemen took the stalwart democrat in charge and proceeded to this city in an automobile, reaching here about 7 o'clock.

Long before the appointed hour for the speaking, the spacious court room was filled with many enthusiastic democrats and admiring friends of the distinguished Kentuckian. When Mr. Stanley made his appearance in the magnificent assembly at 7:30 o'clock, he was greeted with vociferous cheering. It was an old-fashioned Democratic love feast. Every available inch of space was taken. The windows were full, seats were all taken, and the rear of the hall like sardines in a box, all eager to hear the Democratic nominee for Governor. There were many from the rural districts who came to pay homage to the man of such sterling worth. Many ladies graced the crowd and were as enthusiastic in their applause as the men.

Mr. Thomas H. Pickels, editor of the Kentucky Register, in a most pleasing and captivating manner, introduced the speaker. Mr. Pickels did himself and the democracy of Madison county proud, and has been the recipient of many encomiums for the charming manner in which he presented Mr. Stanley to our people. He made an excellent introductory speech and was roundly applauded.

When Mr. Stanley made his bow to the crowd, he was roundly cheered and when he began speaking a silence fell upon the great crowd and ever ear was attentive to catch the eloquent words which flowed from the lips of the great orator. From the time he began speaking until the close, for fully one hour and thirty minutes, there was not a dull moment. The speaker reviewed some of his achievements in the Federal Congress, and told how the Republicans used to corral the Democrats in the Representatives Hall in a corner known as the "Cherokee Strip." At that time there were less than one hundred Democrats in Congress, and the insolent Republicans would taunt and jeer them, and they were looked upon as the scavengers of the earth. But, he said, "Thank God, things have since changed. The Republicans are now occupying the 'Cherokee Strip' in the Lower House, and it is not half full."

In recounting some of his experiences with "Invisible Government" and dealings with the trusts, the great financial and industrial vipers of the State and nation, he said: "Not the creation but the equitable distribution of wealth is the great problem confronting the law-makers of America. Men everywhere realize more and more that inordinate wealth and widespread poverty are in great measure attributable to this inequitable distribution secured by illegal combinations of capital and the creation of gigantic monopolies."

"The one act calculated to protect the people of Kentucky from exploitation and plunder by trusts and monopolies has been declared unconstitutional, and today, this State stands naked and defenseless, a prey to every crooked combination and every form of corporate iniquity, a snare and trap for every commercial pirate, seeking refuge from the legislative and the righteous wrath of the forty-seven sister States."

"In the face of this appalling state of affairs, the Republican platform contains no anti-trust plank, no pledge to curb corporate greed or to punish corporate crime. The reason is not far to seek, it prefers to betray the people rather than offend the interests."

Mr. Stanley paid his respects to Mr. Edwin P. Morrow, his Republican opponent in a manly and dignified manner. He said Mr. Morrow was a nice young man, an honest young fellow, and if elected Governor, he believed he would endeavor to do for the people a good, clean administration, if left wholly to himself. He said that Mr. Morrow, from the time of his winning, had been holding on to the public text, which was placed in his mouth by his uncle, the late Senator William O. Bradley. He paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Morrow's father, the late lamented Judge Morrow, and characterized him as one of the greatest jurists Kentucky ever produced.

From the time the curtain went up until it went down, so to speak, Mr. Stanley thrilled and charmed all who heard him. It was the general consensus of the opinion that it was one of the greatest political speeches ever delivered in Richmond. And we say, Amen!

Mr. Stanley remained in Richmond during over night and was given a hearty welcome during his stay in our midst. He left on the 6:10 train for Winchester, where he took the L. & E. train for Jackson, addressing a big gathering of Democrats in the Breathitt county capital in the afternoon.

The Democracy of Madison is active and harmonious, and when the ballots are counted on November 2, the majority for Stanley and the entire Democratic ticket is sure to be eminently satisfactory.

"I trust," he replied, "that Clara will have your hearty consent, for I am sure that if she does not have it she will do so for you. I have found her a model of amiability and not in the least disposed to claim her own way."

"Just you wait till you're married. I perceive that you are a great deal of the wife of these creatures. They are honey till they get you in their toils and nitric acid after the knot is tied."

"But—Clara—it can't be possible that one so childlike!"

"Childlike? Kittenish you should say. It's that kittenish way she has with her that I am speaking of. She'll tie you with a rope of flowers and gag you with a ripe peach. Then she'll proceed to rifle your pockets. On this account I think it essential that I should provide the family pocketbook with ample funds. I will at least take away the necessity for her to rob you by providing her with what she will need. Besides, I feel under obligations to you for taking on yourself a yoke that has always been mine. If you will name your income it will enable me to know what sum will be necessary to keep you from being ruined."

"When my aunt dies I shall inherit from her about $12,000."

"She won't die. Old women who are active in their minds and whose property is needed by younger persons never die. Besides, the sum you expect will not be."

"But my salary is $2,000."

"What $2,000 for a girl like Clara? No. I see that I shall have to stand in the breach. I have $50,000 in first mortgage 6 per cent bonds that I will give my daughter, and if she gets up in the middle of the night and goes for your pocketbook the more fool you for leaving it where she can get at it."

At this juncture the object of these strictures burst into the room, threw her arms about her father's neck and covered his face with kisses. Then she took her lover by the arm and led him away.

"Isn't your father a bit queer?" asked Mr. Archibald.

"Queer? No. Why do you think him queer?"

"Why he told me that you were?"

"Oh, yes, I heard it all. Papa needs to be understood. So do I."

The young man looked bewildered.

The members are all wide-awake and the most enthusiastic to be found anywhere.

E. V. ELDER

Queer Mr. Gunter

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Mr. Gunter was an original. He never did anything in a way any one else would do it. He had about him a grim humor that few persons understood. If he did one a favor he accompanied it with a slap; if he gave a slap he accompanied it with a favor. The consequence was that the object of his favors and his slaps didn't know whether to love or to hate him.

Possibly the only person who thoroughly understood Mr. Gunter was his daughter, Clara. The reason of her understanding was that she was a chip of the old block. She was the apple of his eye. Whatever she wanted of him she got; whatever he wanted of her he didn't get, though there was nothing he wanted from her except a demonstration of affection, and she was so much like him that the more she loved him the more indifferently she treated him.

Well, the time came—as it usually does with girls—when she got a lover. She went into the country for the summer and came back engaged. On her return she said to her father:

"Papa, I have met the man I wish to marry. He will come to see you to ask you for me. That, of course, is a mere form. I am too like you to be thwarted in anything I desire. Therefore you have only to give your consent, though I hope you will be pleased."

"Just so," remarked the parent. Miss Gunter turned away, but paused, looking at her father with a bit of anxiety in her eyes.

"Papa," she said, "I hope you won't perpetrate any of your peculiarities on Mr. Archibald. Please remember that he is a stranger to you, and even if he had known you all his life he would not understand you."

"My dear, I am too much like you to refrain from whatever may occur to me. I shall doubtless do as you would do if similarly placed. I am sorry to have a daughter with so many of my own imperfections and am sorry to have so many of my daughter's imperfections."

That Miss Clara was uneasy was evident. Nevertheless she said no more. The same evening Mr. Archibald called, asked for Mr. Gunter and was introduced to him by Clara.

"Possibly, Mr. Gunter," he said, "your daughter has informed you—"

"Oh, yes; she has told me all about it. You were to call for my consent to her marriage with you, but since my consent is a mere matter of form you may as well tell me the name of the young man looked much surprised."

"I trust," he replied, "that Clara will have your hearty consent, for I am sure that if she does not have it she will do so for you. I have found her a model of amiability and not in the least disposed to claim her own way."

"Just you wait till you're married. I perceive that you are a great deal of the wife of these creatures. They are honey till they get you in their toils and nitric acid after the knot is tied."

"But—Clara—it can't be possible that one so childlike!"

"Childlike? Kittenish you should say. It's that kittenish way she has with her that I am speaking of. She'll tie you with a rope of flowers and gag you with a ripe peach. Then she'll proceed to rifle your pockets. On this account I think it essential that I should provide the family pocketbook with ample funds. I will at least take away the necessity for her to rob you by providing her with what she will need. Besides, I feel under obligations to you for taking on yourself a yoke that has always been mine. If you will name your income it will enable me to know what sum will be necessary to keep you from being ruined."

"When my aunt dies I shall inherit from her about $12,000."

"She won't die. Old women who are active in their minds and whose property is needed by younger persons never die. Besides, the sum you expect will not be."

"But my salary is $2,000."

"What $2,000 for a girl like Clara? No. I see that I shall have to stand in the breach. I have $50,000 in first mortgage 6 per cent bonds that I will give my daughter, and if she gets up in the middle of the night and goes for your pocketbook the more fool you for leaving it where she can get at it."

At this juncture the object of these strictures burst into the room, threw her arms about her father's neck and covered his face with kisses. Then she took her lover by the arm and led him away.

"Isn't your father a bit queer?" asked Mr. Archibald.

"Queer? No. Why do you think him queer?"

"Why he told me that you were?"

"Oh, yes, I heard it all. Papa needs to be understood. So do I."

The young man looked bewildered.
